State Officials To Investigate: Waste Water Blamed

Death by suffocation of hundreds of thousands of fish in Massie's Creek and the Little Miami River, attributed to stream pollution over the week-end, was to be investigated Tuesday.

Fish, dead and dying, lined both banks of the creek and the river for a distance of at least twentytwo miles, it was reported by Elwood D. Stroup, Greene County game protector.

Stroup charged the fish had been smothered to death by a fibrous substance which matted their gills. The warden notified the state department of health and state conservation commission officials, and a representative of the department

A telegram from E. L. Wickliff, chief of the research division of the fish and game department, directed the warden to meet a departmental official at noon Tuesday to question officials of the Hagar Straw Board and Paper Co.,

JOHN BUTLER LOSES LIFE WHEN FLEEING FROM FLOODED CAMP

Attempt To Cross Stream Is Fatal; Missing Saturday

The body of John Butler, 46, of 322 Cincinnati Ave., this city, missing since 9 o'clock Saturday night when he and companions scrambled for safety after high water threatened to flood their camp along the Little Miami River, south of Spring Valley, was recovered from the river Tuesday morning.

After Sheriff John Baughn had received a belated report Monday afternoon of Butler's disappearance ,Walton Spahr, chief deputy sheriff ,accompanied by six other men, went to the camping site early Tuesday, armed with grappling hooks borrowed from the fire department The searching party, augmented by many volunteers, procured row boats and dragged the river. After the search had been in progress for some time, the body was located about 150 yards down stream from the point where the camp had been located. Virgil Bronson a wheat cutter, found the body concealed beneath the surface of the water against a pile of drift Coroner R. L. Haines, Jamestown, who viewed the body after t had been removed to the R. M. Neeld undertaking parlors, nounced a verdict of accidental holding of an inquest. When Butler shouted to his com panions that he was going to "wade the river," that was the last seen of him by other members of the

has been a matter of various interpretation. The Mosaic law dealt fully leries Lafayette, Paris department with the subject. The first Christian emperor of Rome, Constantine, excepted agriculture from the ban he placed on Sunday labor. The Puri- posters tar revolution in England, whence came our own blue laws, was in part were rigidly outlawed. The reformers went too far, when even the austere John Calvin saw nothing out of the way in playing at bowls on Sunday with the young men of Geneva.

A wide open Sunday is undesirable from both the social and the religious standpoint. A Sunday closed too tight to clean recreation is not desirable. The spirit in which one spends Sunday is of more importance than the manner in which he spends it. What is fitting in one economic era may not be in another. "The hope to merit heaven by making earth a hell" should not be permitted to take the joy out of religion or rob Sunday of its recreational possibilities.

Injury To Chico Marx May Handicap Larks

The Four Marx Brothers are reported facing a crisis in their stage and screen careers due to the serious injury to Chico in an auto accident and his failure to respond to treatently stiffened leg which would man is preparing the story. naturally impair his work.

His kneecap, broken in six places, was mended with silver wire while Chico stayed for weeks in a hospital. The accident occurred near the end of work on "Horsefeathers" and production was stopped with only ten days' more work.

On the brighter side of the comedy ranks are four veterans of the custard pie era who are back on the job again, minus their pastry, but still going strong. They are Ben Turpin, "Snub" Pollard, Bobby Vernon and Victor Potel. All were signed for "Make Me a Star" which is a version of "Merton of the Talkies" which, in turn, is a modernization of the old favorite, "Merton of the Movies."

This is the vehicle which will launch Stuart Erwin as a comedy star and he is plenty nervous over the prospects. "Rusty" Gill, All- Wheaton was gathering up wood American fullback at the Univers- chips while clearing a piece of ity of California last fall, will have land. As he lifted a handful, a rat-a role in the picture but Erwin will tler writhed in his grasp. He play the part of Merton Gill, who hurled it to the ground and killed comes from Simsbury, Ill., to crash it. Hollywood.

The real life Gill shouldn't worry much about his role, since his debut couldn't be any worst than was his first venture after leaving college. "Rusty" tried to be a prize fighter but some pugilist unknown to fame clipped him on the button and Gill determined that prize fighting was out of his line. This decision was applauded by the sports writers, who decided "Rusty" had actually learned something at college after all.

Dolores Del Rio, whom pulchritude experts concede has the one perfect figure in Hollywood, hasn't any particular yearning to display it for the edification of the fans. The Mexican siren almost refused the leading role of Luana in "Bird of Paradise" just because it called for an abbreviated South Seas costume. She later relented when convinced that smiles and palm leaves are quite appropriate for such climates, and so the perfect figure will be seen after all.

And word has come that William Jennings Bryan Jr. will be here in a few days carrying his father's old banner of bi-metallism. Already there are circulating around Chicago copies of a speech he has made on bi-metallism. He has lived much in California of recent years. This seems to be his first major entrance into national politics, al-

During the Republican convention there was even a greater collection of famous sons. James R. Garfield, son of President Garfield, was chairman of the resolutions delegation threatened to advance the name of Robert Taft for vicepresident. And Col. Theodore Roosevelt might easily have been a "dark horse" had the "stop Curtis" movement for the vice-presidency succeeded in bringing on a threatened deadlock. The Roosevelts, however, have never been out of the political picture. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, usually looked upon as having inherited much of her father's political sense, has been carrying on family traditions almost since the day of her wedding to Nicholas Longworth, and Col. Theodore Roosevelt has been almost equally as long active. Ker- Mrs. Bernice Hughes, instructor at mit Roosevelt too, is heard from East High School, left Sunday for from time to time.
